ARSB & Bangladesh Red Crescent Society Organised a Basic First Aid Training

The Basic First Aid Training organized by the ARSB (Amateur Radio Society Bangladesh) and the Bangladesh Red Crescent Society was held on the 10th and 11th of June 2022. This training session aimed to equip participants with essential lifesaving skills and knowledge necessary in emergencies.

Objectives of the Training

The primary objectives of this training were to:

- Provide fundamental knowledge of first aid procedures.
- Enhance participants' confidence and ability to respond to emergencies.
- Educate on the importance of prompt and appropriate action during accidents or sudden illness.
- Develop skills to address common injuries and medical situations.

During the two-day training, various important topics were covered.

ARSB recognizes the importance of providing

ARSB recognizes the importance of providing voluntary communication support during times of national emergency. To prepare for such situations, the organization is actively involved in establishing a long-range repeater system with Echolink facility, participating in amateur satellite activities, and introducing young amateurs to international contests. By doing so, ARSB aims to provide the best possible communication support to the nation in times of crisis.

In conclusion, the Amateur Radio Society of Bangladesh (ARSB) is dedicated to promoting the practice of amateur radio and ensuring its relevance in emergency situations. Through various initiatives and activities, ARSB aims to connect experienced and young operators, impart technological knowledge, and contribute to the nation's emergency communication efforts.
